Is this a euphemism for someone that has a penis which has no blood (is "frozen")? Sounds gay to me...I mean, it's just so hard to type things when you're making up new words...I'll have to look this up though...thanks! It's good to see you enjoying the forum and have fun with us! Yes, there is some application of this. It can be used to describe a person who has their penis being held in a freezer for long periods of time. Of course, in practice this might not be the case because there are far too many people in the world. Wow! I had no idea that there were actually such things as people frozen in ice! They'd probably be water, though, rather than ice... In a glass? But there are people that have been frozen and preserved? I don't think I've heard this before. Where do these people live? If they're frozen they'll probably be kinda dead, right? Do
